Event: Research and Development Cell and Legal Aid Cell organized a session on "Comprehensive Overview of Laws Relating to Children with Special Emphasis on Cyber Crimes"

Date: 14th March 2024

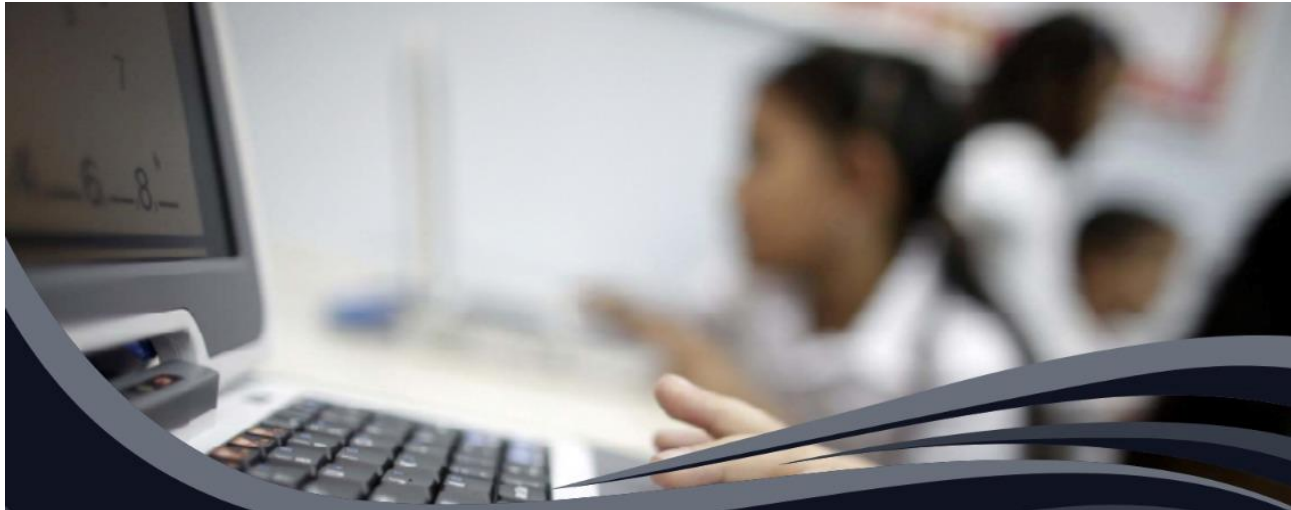

Venue: I-Block Auditorium

Participants: 68 students

In response to the growing concerns surrounding the safety and well-being of children in the digital age, a session titled "Comprehensive Overview of Laws Relating to Children with Special Emphasis on Cyber Crimes" was organized. The session aimed to provide participants with an in-depth understanding of the legal frameworks pertaining to children's rights and protection, particularly in the context of cybercrimes.

The session comprised various components, including presentations where legal expert delivered presentations providing an overview of relevant laws and regulations concerning children's rights and cyber-crimes. These presentations covered topics such as child protection laws, cybercrime legislation, and international conventions. Real-life case studies were presented to illustrate the challenges and complexities involved in addressing cyber-crimes against children. These case studies facilitated a deeper understanding of the legal issues and practical implications. Participants were encouraged to engage in interactive discussions and pose questions to the guest, facilitating a dynamic exchange of ideas and insights.

The session on "Comprehensive Overview of Laws Relating to Children with Special Emphasis on Cyber Crimes" served as a valuable platform for stakeholders to come together and address pressing issues concerning children's rights and protection in the digital age. By fostering dialogue, sharing expertise, and generating actionable recommendations, the session contributed to advancing efforts to create a safer and more secure online environment for children. Moving forward, sustained collaboration and advocacy efforts will be essential to effectively address the complex challenges posed by cyber-crimes targeting children.

Venue: G- Block, School of Law, MRU, Faridabad

The National Conference on Juvenile Delinquency: Psychological and Socio-Legal Perspectives was convened on 15th April, 2024, aiming to address the multifaceted issues surrounding juvenile delinquency. Organized by Legal Aid Committee, School of Law, MRU, the conference brought together experts, practitioners, scholars, and policymakers to exchange insights, share research findings, and explore innovative approaches for addressing juvenile delinquency from both psychological and socio-legal perspectives.

Key Objectives:

To examine the underlying psychological factors contributing to juvenile delinquency.

To explore socio-legal frameworks and interventions aimed at preventing and addressing juvenile delinquency.

To facilitate interdisciplinary dialogue and collaboration among stakeholders working in the field of juvenile justice.

Highlights and Proceedings:

Inaugural Address: The conference commenced with an inaugural address emphasizing the importance of understanding the root causes of juvenile delinquency and adopting evidence-based approaches for intervention and rehabilitation.

Plenary Sessions: The plenary sessions featured presentations by renowned psychologists, legal scholars, and practitioners, covering a wide range of topics such as the impact of adverse childhood experiences on delinquent behavior, the role of family dynamics in juvenile offending, and the effectiveness of diversion programs in juvenile justice systems.

Parallel Workshops: Participants had the opportunity to attend parallel workshops focusing on specific themes, including:

Psychosocial interventions for at-risk youth.

Restorative justice practices in juvenile rehabilitation.

Legal reforms and policy implications for juvenile justice.

Panel Discussions: Engaging panel discussions provided a platform for interactive dialogue among participants, addressing emerging challenges, best practices, and opportunities for collaboration in the field of juvenile justice.

Research Presentations: Researchers and academics presented their latest findings on juvenile delinquency, offering empirical insights into risk factors, protective factors, and evidence-based interventions for addressing delinquent behavior among adolescents.

Networking Opportunities: The conference facilitated networking opportunities for participants to connect with peers, share experiences, and forge partnerships for future research and collaborative endeavors.

Key Outcomes and Recommendations:

Enhanced Understanding: The conference deepened participants' understanding of the complex interplay between psychological factors, socio-legal dynamics, and juvenile delinquency.

Knowledge Exchange: The exchange of knowledge and best practices among diverse stakeholders contributed to the enrichment of strategies for preventing and addressing juvenile offending.

Policy Implications: Insights generated from the conference underscored the importance of evidence-based policy-making and the need for holistic approaches that integrate psychological, social, and legal interventions.

Call for Continued Collaboration: Participants emphasized the importance of sustained interdisciplinary collaboration and the involvement of community stakeholders in designing comprehensive juvenile justice systems.

Conclusion:

The National Conference on Juvenile Delinquency: Psychological and Socio-Legal Perspectives served as a platform for advancing understanding, fostering collaboration, and catalyzing action towards more effective responses to juvenile offending. By integrating psychological insights with socio-legal frameworks, the conference contributed to the collective effort to promote the well-being and rehabilitation of at-risk youth within our communities.
